

KGC Development & Growth

Welcome to our Spring 2022 newsletter and fourth year for this semi-annual publication.

As KGC approaches our seventh year in business, despite the current economic challenges and hurdles, the diversity of our experience continues to accelerate at a rapid pace. We are devoted and committed to our construction industry stakeholders at all levels, including but not limited to Legal Firms, Owners, Investors, Developers, Contractors, Trade Contractors, Contractor Associations and Insurance Companies.

KGC is especially grateful to our current and previous clients for the repeat business and the referral volume of work that has sustained our firm and allowed it to grow through these interesting and challenging times. More importantly, we wish to thank the legal community for providing access to the valuable online knowledge-sharing seminars and webinars over the past 24 months.

Project Case Management Approach

With the shifting trend to adopt Legal Project Management to realize time efficiencies, contain costs and reduce redundancy, KGC is a firm believer in the words of Michael Dell “Companies will succeed and fail based on their ability to translate data...into insights and actions.”

At KGC we continue to develop continuous enhancements in our processes, procedures, questionnaires, templates and software tools. By employing “lessons learned” at the conclusion of our assignments, we are positioned to leverage and optimize lean-thinking behaviour in the execution of our future services and deliverables.

Professional Development Training in Adjudication

Over the past six months two of our senior consultants have acquired adjudication training to assist various clients due to significant changes in building construction legislation and regulation in Québec, Ontario, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Mr. George Anderson underwent a five-day intensive training workshop provided by York University Osgoode Hall Law School to acquire a Certificate in Adjudication for Administrative Agencies, Boards and Tribunals.

Mr. Jerry Crawford enrolled in the RICS ADRIC Adjudication Training three-module program, which covers the areas of the common law legal system and requires the submission of two written assignments addressing the framework for adjudication, as well as a practical decision written examination.

Meet another KGC expert

Erin Quinn, P.Eng.,

With a previous 17-year career as Mechanical and Project Engineer in engineering and construction delivery, Erin Quinn has demonstrated and proven that repurposing her talents and transitioning into the construction dispute litigation support world in the last two years has been a welcome and positive switch.

Having a familiar broad-based background in reimbursable/lump sum contracts, resource planning, executing scopes of work, developing and analyzing schedules, project controls analysis, including estimating and quantity take-offs, has allowed Erin to apply those acquired competencies very successfully into our assignments.

Her past experience with software, administering and managing large amounts of documentation associated with handling interfaces among disciplines, has given KGC a strategic resource to operate its internal AI program. The true benefit to the organization and subject matter experts is realized through the ability to filter through numerous mega-bits of data efficiently to isolate the key documents of significance for review.

When Erin is not working for KGC she enjoys the pleasantries of ultimate frisbee, camping with her family and exploring the mountain trails in Calgary's backyard.
